74-4919e. Revocation of election; new election after termination and withdrawal. No member, having elected to repurchase previously forfeited credit as hereinbefore provided, may revoke such election so long as such member is an eligible employee of a participating employer. If any such member again terminates employment with a participating employer and withdraws such member's accumulated contributions, such member shall be granted a new election hereunder upon again returning to employment with a participating employer and again becoming an eligible employee.
